Southern French Alps, an exceptional territory between sea & mountain

Glide over fresh snow in the morning and savour dinner by the Mediterranean in the evening: the Southern Alps embodies a unique alliance of majestic mountains and sparkling waters.

With summits rising to over 4,000 metres and preserved valleys galore, we invite our visitors to explore the diversity and authentic charm of the region's 62 major ski resorts and village resorts.

From medieval hamlets to resorts proudly sporting the "20th Century Heritage" label, every foray promises an exciting new winter experience under dazzling azure skies.

The Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur region is home to France's second-largest ski area, meaning our inhabitants and visitors enjoy 2,500 km of alpine ski slopes and 1,200 km of cross-country trails. And that's not all: the Southern Alps is an invitation to roam through the beating heart of endless natural landscapes offering a multitude of activities, such as hiking, rock climbing and trail running.

Handily located a short drive from both Provence and the Côte d'Azur, the Southern Alps is a cultural treasure trove too, where you'll find heritage galore plus ancient traditions and an enviable lifestyle. Wellbeing is an everyday habit here: simply gaze out at the breathtaking scenery and breathe in the pure, invigorating air. Passionate about their destination, the welcoming locals are proud ambassadors of this unique territory, always delighted to introduce newcomers to the age-old secrets of the mountains.

Well aware of the importance of preserving this natural gem, we championed Europe's first "100%" green vote, expressing our commitment to fighting the climate emergency.

The "puralpes" hashtag asserts the Southern Alps' determination to preserve Europe's purest air for future generations.

And the Southern Alps is far more than a winter refuge: it is a genuine lifestyle hub, offering an alluring blend of nature, sport, culture and tranquillity. A year-round invitation to get away from it all.

Getting ready for the 2030 Winter Olympics!

Our region is thrilled to be welcoming this prestigious international event, hall-marked by a sober-yet-innovative "snow & chalets" identity that respects the mountains and their identity as bearers of alpine heritage. Honouring a balance between economy and ecology is part of our DNA. If you liked Paris 2024, you'll love the French Alps 2030!

62 magical destinations, a thousand marvellous mountains

© OT Serre Chevalier ↑

What do our visitors love most about their stay in the Southern Alps? The omnipresent sunshine, heartwarming villages, diverse mountainscapes and vast, untamed wilderness laden with larch trees and pristine snow...

From the summits of the Ecrins mountains to the valleys of Mercantour, the Southern Alps offers far more than a pretty picture. Firmly anchored in the heart of its inhabitants, it is a destination that inspires sincere ties between visitors and the people behind the mountain ecosystem – ties that ensure the mountains thrive in every season and are able to tackle climate and societal challenges with a united front. The Southern Alps is a resolutely human-focused mountain range.

Half of the 62 ski resorts dotted between Nice Côte d'Azur and Briançon, in and around national parks and regional nature reserves, are actually village resorts (they even have their own "station-village" charter), boasting gorgeous old architecture, less than 2,000 inhabitants and a vigorous commitment to protecting the environment.

Resorts such as Serre Chevalier Briançon, Le Sauze and Orcières- Merlette have also grown up around a historic heart. Others, such as Superdévoluy or Les Orres, have earned a place on the prestigious "20th Century Heritage" list, in recognition of their innovative architecture and creative spirit. Last but not least, the Southern Alps offers a remarkable combination of sea and mountain: on clear days, you can glimpse the Mediterranean Sea from the ski resorts of Isola 2000, Roubion-les-Buisses and Turini Camp d'Argent.

The 2030 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games Here in Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur!

"The entire region is set to benefit from the dynamics of the French Alps 2030 Winter Olympics. Regional planning, sport, transport... The Olympic Winter Games promise to propel us into another dimension. If you liked Paris 2024, you'll love the French Alps 2030!"

The 2030 Winter Olympics: a never-before-seen focus on sobriety

The Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur region is committed to building a coherent sporting project that satisfies the needs of its mountainous areas and the people who live there, while striving to meet the heritage and environmental conservation objectives laid down in the "French Alps 2030" Olympic bid.

3,500 athletes will be competing in 118 events at the 2030 Winter Olympics, taking place in the world's largest ski area.

BRIANÇON CLUSTER

- Serre Chevalier: Halfpipe, Freestyle, Mogul
- Montgenèvre: Parallel Giant Slalom, Slopestyle, Big Air, Ski & Snowboard Cross, Banked Para Slalom, Para Snowboard Cross
- Olympic and Paralympic village at Fort des Têtes

NICE CÔTE D'AZUR CLUSTER

- Palais Nikaia: Curling and Wheelchair Curling
- Stade Allianz Riviera: Men's and Women's Ice Hockey

- Future Nice Ice Rink: Figure Skating, Short Track Speed Skating, Para Hockey
- Future Exhibition Centre: International Broadcast Centre / Main Press Centre
- Olympic and Paralympic Village of Nice
- Closing Ceremony on the Promenade des Anglais in Nice

Exceptional investments for a sustainable legacy

As part of our 2030 Winter Olympics pledge, the Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur region is also committed to improving the daily life of its inhabitants:

- Modernization of regional transport: refurbishment of the Veynes railway node, Marseille-Briançon service in 3½ hours, acceleration of building work on the new Provence Côte d'Azur railway line, Alpine traffic solutions (Gap ring road, RN85 between Digne and Malijai), Provence Côte d'Azur railway line.
- The 2025-2030 Regional Mountain Sport Development Plan, in particular the creation of a "Preparation Centre for major international ski competitions" in Ubaye Valley.

- Modernization of ski resort infrastructures, including the construction of a detachable 6-seater chairlift in Orcières Merlette 1850 and refurbishment of the Joue du Loup sport & recreation complex.

- Zero Plan to eliminate medical deserts in alpine and rural areas.

Inspiring champions

Simon BILLY

The son of speed skier Philippe Billy lives in Vars, the ideal location for dedicating time to his passion. A faultless training schedule and tireless determination earned him the title of Speed Ski World Champion in March 2023, when he achieved his dream by reaching speeds of up to 255.5 km/hr.

SPEED MASTERS & WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP | Vars

The lucky few speed skiers launching off the top of the slope will be aiming to top the dizzy record of 255.5 km/hr! Thanks to a stadium open to skiers aged 6 years upwards, speed skiing isn't just for champions these days. Of course, you'll want to leave the dizziest descents to the pros, but the bottom of the slope offers an ideal playground for testing your limits at speeds of up to 120 km/hour.

Arthur BAUCHET

Triple gold medal winner at the 2022 Paralympic Games in Beijing, Arthur also has a slope named after him in his home resort of Serre Chevalier. After bearing the Olympic torch last June, he was picked as a consultant for France TV during the Paris Olympics and aspires to be on the starting line of the 2030 Winter Olympics taking place "at home" in the French Alps! In between times, he'll be heading to the 2026 Winter Olympics in Milan-Cortina. Always up for a challenge, the young skier also trains in Para Cycling!

Southern French Alps A sustainable & eco-desirable mountain range

In Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur – an ecological planning pilot region –, the green transition is happening on all fronts. Our local inhabitants are playing a vital role too and have become genuine ambassadors for today's new ways of experiencing the mountains. Here are just some of the focuses:

- Sustainable mobility, with a network of bus services and snow trains at friendly prices.
- Preservation of landscapes, with the reduction – and recycling – of numerous pylons and installation of ski lifts that use less energy.
- Leisure real estate upgrades, with better thermal insulation and aesthetics; energy saving through the use of solar panels.
- Low-carbon snow groomers.
- Think tanks on the use of artificial snow.
- Development of 4-seasons tourism and non-motorized nature activities.
- Commitment to the "Valeurs Parc Naturel Régional" regional nature reserve label ("A new life begins here") and "Esprit Parc National" national park label, in conjunction with Écrins and Mercantour national parks.

Nature Reserves ZERO SMOKE REFUGES

Part of the 2021-2027 Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur Mountain Plan, the Zero Smoke Refuges initiative supports the implementation of "clean" energy production systems (solar thermal and photovoltaic) in isolated establishments that are not connected to the power grid, such as mountain refuges. Replacing polluting generators with renewable solutions will help preserve our landscapes and air quality. The region is home to over thirty high mountain refuges.

"A NEW LIFE BEGINS HERE" The Valeurs Parc label

The "Valeurs Parc Naturel Régional" label is awarded to service providers located in France's regional nature reserves. It is based on strict criteria including, of course, a strong commitment to the environment, together with excellent knowledge of local traditions and roots. In the Queyras area, around fifty accommodation providers, producers, artisans and activity providers are proud holders of the label.

Southern French Alps A gourmet mountain range

Short distribution circuits reign supreme here. A myriad of small producers, often using organic or "reasonable farming" (agriculture raisonnée) methods, supply delicious fare to local inhabitants and visitors alike.

38% of regional farms favour short circuits versus the national average of 21%. What's more, with 40% certified farmland, the Hautes-Alpes is France's leading organic area. Champsaur supplies the Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur region with milk from cows bred on Europe's highest bocage.

Year-round markets, auberges and restaurants exalt the Southern Alps' heartfelt local produce in every season, with stars of the show including cheeses, cured meats, mushrooms, wild berries and genepi...

A unique endemic fruit tree: the "marmottier"

The marmottier, or Briançon apricot tree, is Europe's highest-altitude fruit tree, endemic to the southwestern Alps. In spring, its white flowers form fluffy bouquets among the scree. Resembling little plums with a greenish flesh, its fruit, known as the "afatoule", is very bitter. Le Plantivore, an artisan from Château Ville-Vieille, in the Queyras area, magicks it into a delicious jam, sweetened with plenty of honey and sugar.

Exhilarating Serre Chevalier-Briançon

Serre Chevalier's 250 kilometres of slopes make it one of France's largest ski areas and eminently qualified to host the 2030 Winter Olympics mogul and freestyle events! Most of the slopes pan out from altitudes of over 2,000 metres on the heights of Guisane Valley, between Briançon and Col du Lautaret. Serre Chevalier also boasts plenty of different departure points: you can set off from Briançon on the Prorel gondola, with sweeping views over Briançon's UNESCO World Heritage fortifications, or one of the villages in the valley. The Pontillas gondola on the snow front of Salle-les-Alpes, home to a vast, elegant and recently-refurbished Club Med resort, leads to the new beginners' area on Méa plateau. Fun and elegant, Serre Chevalier is also a pioneer in sustainable development, constantly seeking new ways to reduce its environmental impact. It is the first ski resort to produce a third of its own energy requirements using a combination of micro wind turbines, hydroelectricity and solar power.

Intense La Grave-La Meije

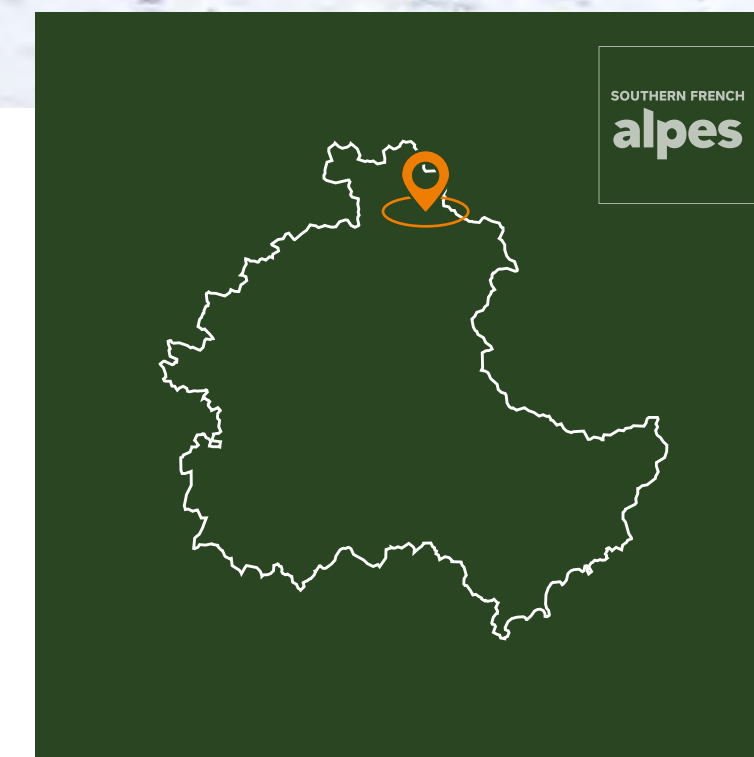

Two villages nestle at the foot of La Meije, one of Écrins National Park's most iconic peaks between Emparis plateau and the Lautaret mountain pass. The high mountain territories of Villar-d'Arène and La Grave are surrounded by glaciers and little, traditional villages. Freeriders flock to this legendary destination from the world over.

The only two groomed slopes are located on the Girose glacier, at an altitude of 3,200 metres. Seasoned athletes thrive at these high altitudes, on the off-piste slopes of La Meije. But you don't need to be an adrenalin freak to appreciate the authentic, rustic and powerful mountainscapes of La Grave-La Meije. Novices can enjoy learning to ski in the cosy resort of Chazelet, at very affordable prices, while all the family will relish the comforting cuisine on offer at the local auberges, admiring the view over the glaciers of La Meije from the cable car, or heading out to explore the authentic local villages, rich in history and traditions.

Peaceful Montclar-les-Deux Vallées, La Blanche & Ubaye Valley

The Blanche-Serre-Ponçon area is often likened to a little Switzerland in Provence! Opened just 50 years ago, Montclar-les-Deux Vallées was one of France's first resort towns. Small, triangular buildings, with silhouettes reminiscent of mountain peaks, form the heart of the pedestrian village. 17 chairlifts lead to 50 km of slopes careering downwards opposite Serre-Ponçon lake or on the heights of Ubaye valley. The resort focuses primarily on farm tours, hikes on groomed trails and visits to major heritage sites, including Seyne-les-Alpes fort, now the venue for an exciting escape game.
